

From early childhood, Jobe Lopez showed a natural inclination towards creativity and a genuine love for nature and its effortless beauty. Through his many years of studying horticulture and the introduction to the work of world-renowned Brazilian Landscape architect Roberto Burle Marx and Spanish architect Fernando Carucho, proved to be a major influence on developing the foundation to design and installation of many gardens. In the ever-evolving world of landscape design, Jobe believes that one principle should remain above all; the idea that architecture, interior design and landscape design should be a single feature, and all should work harmoniously combined as one. A garden should feel effortless, which can only be accomplished by using plants that will thrive in their new setting complementing the buildings and structures around it. By the rule of this principle, to Jobe, no two designs or projects are ever the same. He has been working in the Palm Beaches for over 20 years and has had the privilege of working with many well-established landscape architects which have further influenced his design, and thus, he has been able to take his visions into one of a kind gardens.
